man or lady, whom I shall see winspersage out leave, I will ferrile!"

The teacher, Mr. Arthur Stone, closed his bearded lips firmly, and glanced about the old fashioned school room with a determined expression, as he ceased speaking. He evidently means, and one which should be most rigorously enforced. A horse thoughtlessly or willfully tied to a young shale tree, may in ten minutes foll the fash young shale tree, may in ten or lady, whom I shall see winspersage in the will fash young shall see will fash young shall be will fash young shall be most rightly for the fash young shall be will fash young shall be will fash young shall y dinances of the city designed to protect individcountrymen and citizens. The same may be said of injuring shade trees in any way. These are for private interests particularly, but there is another ordinance which is for both public and private benefit. We allude to the one forbidding driving on the side walks. It is a well known fact that there is a great violation of this ordinance in this city.-Fire companies take the side walks for their pathway, forcing pedestrians into the street; and upon some of the by streets, the carriage way is left untrodden, and the side walks used almost exclusively

While this practice is common to some extent over a large portion of the city, it has proved a special grievance to the residents upon Scovill Avue. This avenue has been most excellently graded and abundantly furnished with shade trees, which when they shall have grown a few years, will make this the 'forest street' of the city. The earriage way has been finely laid out, and is now one of the driest and hardest streets in the city, being far better than Kinsman or Enclid. This excellent road has been deserted for the side walks, over which buggies and teams are passed, thereby doing much damage both to the walks and to the trees and guards. This had become so great a nuisance to the residents of the locality that they determined to submit no longer. Accordingly yesterday afters took their station, prepared to arrest without respect of persona, each one who rode upon the side walks. The following gentlemen were arrested for violating the ordinance:

Edw. Hessenmucller, Esq., Prof. Horace G. Bird, Prof. H. Geib, James Kyser. Mattin Spence, and Thomas Wison. These creatlennen will be broadt throughly aside his own wishes and inclination in the walks and inclination in the street to No. 97 St. Clair street. when they shall have grown a few years, will make

Thomas Wilson. These gentlemen will be brought this morning before the Police Court,

We need not say that this step was necessary to put a check upon the constantly increasing travel upon the forbidden path. It may seem to some hard that they should be arrested for such an offence, but let any who are inclined to find fault imagine themselves property holders and residents upon that Avenue. Would they tamely submit to the wrong, Avenue. Would they tamely submit to the wrong, when so much pains had been taken to beautify the street? Most surely not.

The property holders above spoken of are determined to put a stop to tall such travel, and to fol- to pause anywhere in her vicinity, for fear his low up these arrests with that of all who trespass. Valuable trees and tree guards have been torn down or specied upon these walks, and a stop is to be put to it. The law provides that for a violation of this ordinance, the offenders shall be fined erything about her. Two or three times he half were brought before Judge Vail on a charge of obtaining goods under false pretences. The circumcob and George Keefer, two brothers, on their way from Germany to Kansas, stopped over night at the house kept by Carr and Keller, on Union Lane. They had their lodgings and took breakfast. During the latter, the brothers were asked where they were going, and if they had tickets. They answere that they had tickets to Jefferson City, and they had ticket to Jefferson City, and they had ticket to Jefferson City, and they are a small come breast-ring the brother throat her a small come breast-ring the brother throat her a small come breast-ring the brother. wered that they had tickets to Jefferson City, and oute-that when they reached Jefferson City they would be as far from Kansas as they were now. therefore their tickets were useless, but, as he was fifty cents apiece for them, for the sake of accommodating his friends and countrymen. They, be leving what he said, delivered their tickets, worth face Officers Warren and Lawrence, they arrested the land sharks. They were yesterday morning fined ten days. Such diabolical fleecing of emigrants who had stopped with Carr and Keller, that they might be protected by their countrymen, is most thuman, and we hope the offenders will see the rror of their ways before they have the privilege of leaving the jail. Frisbee Washington, a colored gentleman, was had died out from his cheeks and forehead, he brought up on a charge of burglary. His case will said, in a voice, the coolness of which surprised se heard this morning. Frisbee does not honor the name of Washington, as he is a tough cus-to-James Hennessy, charged with larceny of seven quilts from a dry goods store, was fined $20 and ets, and twenty days imprisonment. Edward Slade, took several drops too much and became intoxicated. Under those circumstance he was arrested. He was fined $3 and costs.

FERULING ANNA HAWKES.

BY MARGARET VERNE. "Buzz—buzz—buzz—buzz!"
"Indeed I cannot stand this. You'll drive me quite crazy with you bozz, buzz, buzzing — I must and will have silence. I find that plain pleasant persuasion will not do; I shall be forced to resort to a harsher method. Now, listen one VIOLATION OF ORDINANCES.—There are many and all, while I sesure you that the first scholar, old or young, miss or master, young gentle-

As it lay so tenderly and trustingly upon the broad palm of the teacher, he inwardly on the broad palm of the teacher, he inwardly as the broad palm of the teacher, he inwardly as the broad palm of the teacher, he inwardly as the broad palm of the teacher, he inwardly as the broad palm of the teacher, he inwardly as the broad palm of the teacher, he inwardly as the broad palm of the teacher, he inwardly as the broad palm of the teacher. thar Stone, if I whisper ever so much !"

Solution in a started from his sent to go to her assistance, as she kint her white brows perplexedly, but a strange new feeling, like pride, kept him back. He thought lie had never seen her look half so hand running rapidly and gracefully over her slate. Her dress of dark crimson cloth, with its stances of the case are these. On Friday last Ja. full sleeves confined at the wrists by black velthroat by a small cameo breast-pin; the knots were going to Kansas. Carr then told them that of black velvet ribbon fastened about her luxu-they had bought their tickets over the wrong riant soft brown braids; the petite black slik apron, with its girdle of silk cord, and full, large, drooping tassels, and even the slender, shining little kid boots that peeped daringly out from the folds of her ample skirt. In all onected with the railroad, he would allow them fity cents apiece for them, for the sake of accompodating his friends and countrymen. They, be-In a moment the pretty seriousness some $15 each, over to him and received one dollar in return. The facts coming to the knowledge of the facts coming to the knowledge of the rosy warrest was gone. A provoking smile curled up her rosy mouth, and went with a sudden rush of the rosy mouth, and went with a sudden rush of the rosy mouth. of triumph over her whole face, dilating her land sharks. They were yesterday morning fined finely curved uostrils and sweeping like very $100 and costs each, and imprisonment in the Jail sunshine over the blue of her eyes, making such rare dimples about her chin, as one might have supposed to have been fitted by the cunning foreinger of Cupid himself.

Arthur Stone was vexed, but he was too much a man of the world to allow the young girl to know how much she was capable of annoying him, and so after the first flame of petty anger even himself. "Can I be of assistance to you Miss Hawkes!

"None, sir, I thank you. I have quite con-quered my exercises alone to-day." Foolish fellow! The very coolness of his man-ner betrayed the secret which he strove to hide. There was little need of coverts if there was nothing to conceal. And so it was that the forenoon slipped unpleasantly away, and the after-noon came in its stead. The teacher's rule so far was a good one. The school was remarka-ble for its quietude. If Anna Hawkes had not been present, Mr. Stone would have counted it

success, but as it was, he was in a constant

A raised hand in the neighborhood of her seat and a timid application for assistance was met with something like an unreasonable frown. In a hurried, nervous way he proceeded to explain the West Side, who, by their generous donations of money, clothing, books, toys, or good things for the Christmas Dinner, sent joy and sunshine through the Orphan home which will linger there for many days.

The name of each donor is registered, except in whome they came as well as did every scholar whome they came as well as did every scholar whome they came as well as did every scholar. whence they came as well as did every scholar that heard them. He could not pass thought-lessly along. The dread alarm had come with such a sudden distinctness as to surprise him into an involuntary start. Every pair of eyes eyes, and black whiskers, and a smiling face, and in the school room were turned inquiringly and be couldn't be over twenty four- but he did'nt leave curiously to his face. He was forced into doing his duty. The heavy beard about his mouth was friendly to him then, for it covered a suspicious pallor that scitled there as he turned about and rested his eyes sternly upon the bluehing, piquant face of Anna Hawkes. She was the ture of innocence just then, with her brown lashes drooped low upon her cheeks, and the pearly white teeth crushed cruelly down upon the crimson of her lips. "Miss Hawkes, can you tell me who whisper ed a moment since! "Yes, sir." The white lids were thrown wide open, and the clear eye fixed frankly upon his

"Will you oblige me by stepping this way a moment?" He led the way out into the floor. "Yes, sir, certainly." She followed him gromptly, pausing beside the desk and resting me hand prettily upon its top. "I suppose you listened to my rule of this norming?"

"Yes, sir." You understood it, too, doubtless!" "Yes, sir, perfectly."
"Understanding it perfectly, then, you have been pleased to break it. Can you name my "It does not admit of a question Ferule me,

She leaned her elbow upon the desk, and her burning face upon her hand. "I shall be Lappy to listen to you," she said
"I will not trouble you but a moment, only to say that I regret more than I am able to express, that a scholar whom I have ever endeavored to treat with uniform courtesy and respect, and in whose advancement I had felt a lively interest, should, by so glaring a misdemennor, such utter contempt of my wishes, avow her discreased for me as a teacher and a friend.

was but one which his eye sought intuitively, drawn as it were, by some strange, measurers power. One face, and one at that moment which was a pretty picture of piquant beauty, with its saucy, inquisitive blue eyes, which met his own fully and daringly—its strawberry red mouth pursed up by the most provoking and daring of smiles, that said as plandy as words could have said it—"You wont ferule me, Arthur Stone, if I whister ever so much!"

though it were to receive a careas instead of a blow. As it lay so tenderly and frustingly upon the broad palm of the teacher, he inwardly ursed his stars. He called himself a brate, a monster. He had a mind to get down upon his knees and pray for a big mouthed earthquake to come and swallow him; for a sudden flash of lightning (in the winter time) to melt him into momentity; for a whirlwheld to come and swallow him; for a sudden flash of lightning (in the winter time) to melt him into momentity; for a whirlwhile to come and swallow him; for a sudden flash of lightning (in the winter time) to melt him into momentity; for a whirlwhile to come and swallow him; for a sudden flash of lightning (in the winter time) to melt him into momentity; for a whirlwhile to come and swallow him; for a sudden flash of lightning (in the winter time) to melt him into momentity; for a whirlwhile to come and swallow him; for a sudden flash of lightning (in the winter time) to melt him into momentity; for a whirlwhile to come and swallow him; for a sudden flash of lightning (in the winter time) to melt him into momentity in the broad palm of the teacher, he inwards the winter time in the broad palm of the teacher, he inwards the same, and the winter time in the broad palm of the teacher, he in which was a pretty point which was sweep him with its inpid rushing wings from A sudden flush of anger residenced up into the cheeks of the young man, and shot from the depths of his fine fine gray eyes, as he said, determinedly, in answer to the smale of the red mouth and blue eyes, and the toss of the dainty the owner a little white line was islanding the red within his grasp, and about the mouth of the owner a little white line was islanding the reduced of the red white line was islanding the reduced of the reduc redness of her lips.
